... BEYOND A DREAM

Not so long ago we saw
our target in the distance,
Together, aiming and firing,
we hit bull's eye,
we were successful.
Content as infants with bottles,
we aimed no higher;
“we” changed to singular “he’s,
she’s.”
Alone, individuals strove for lone goals;
but OUR goals remained untouched
yet shared a common dream,
—UNITY—

Like dandelions, we entered our future
waiting for a playful breeze to set petals free.
Like the lilting starlets,
unaware of our fate,
we placed our trust in visions
beyond a dream.
We were experiencing
new feelings and realizations:
feelings of peace and
responsibility,
accompanied by realizations of trust
and friendship.

How we accepted these challenges
and used this knowledge helped us discover
our world . . .
BEYOND A DREAM

With noisemakers and loud shouts Juniors give it all they’ve got striving for the Spirit Crown at pre-Attleboro game rally.

Jubilant emotions trigger tears, as Susan Donnelly begins her reign as Homecoming Queen.

Morning greeted with smiles, yawns

Buses pulled up, stumbling students disembarked and a Feehan day dawned. Locker combinations clumsily twirled brought avalanches of books upon unsuspecting victims, forcing them to face the long day. Students, inconspicuously sitting on locker floors tripping passersby, squeezed in last minute homework. Helping hands were extended, secrets shared and weekend dates planned, bulletin board news passed on. Suddenly, the bell rang, Feehan corridors came alive with smiles and chatter, as students ran off to their first period experiences.

Discussing Feehan's chances to "Walk on Attleboro", Thomas Lynch reassures hoop-fans Sandra Morrissey and Kathy Gauteri.

Contemplating the essence of man's existence, Henry McDeed appropriately "is".

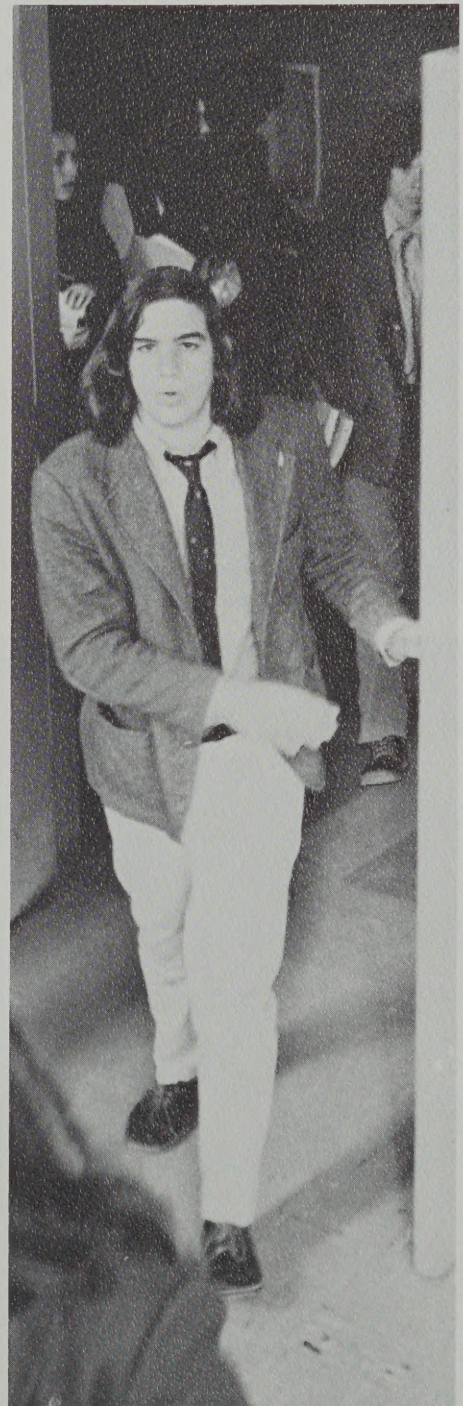

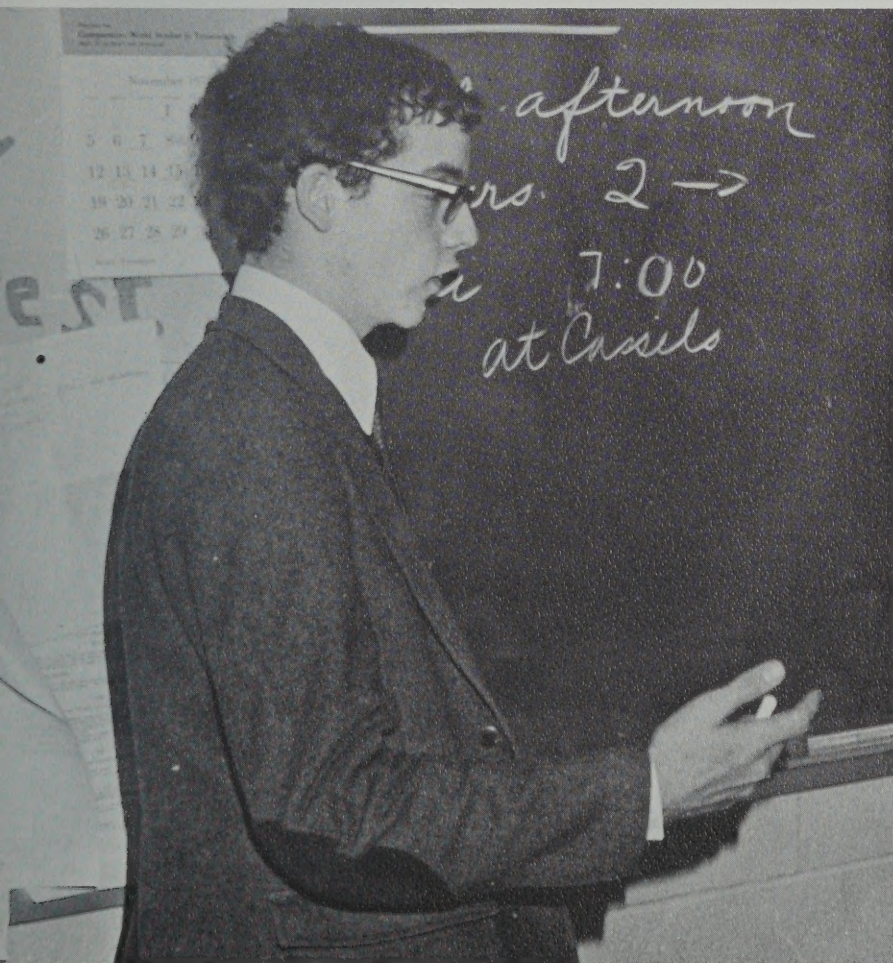

Raising an interesting point during homeroom period, Student Council representative, Mark Traversi, asks for a response as Gary Zilch reluctantly awakes.

Explaining some of the basic concepts of higher mathematics, John McGee tries to explain complicated proofs logically in Introductory Analysis.

Swinging open another Feehan day, Timothy Greenwood camouflages morning blahs in the "post-bell pandemonium."

"You can do it", emphasizes Brother Morris Mercier as he initiates operation "Can Do" collecting canned goods for Appalachia.

Starring in "Hair", "Purlie", "Superstar," and "Godspell" in The Gospel According To . . . are Lorice Stevens and George Tipton at our March assembly.

Enjoying their free minutes between classes, Priscilla Ferland, Lorrie Demers and Sue Carvalho take a breather while rambling through busy corridors.

Pizza, "Godspell," Feehan jigsaw

Running down halls to make classes, "Kerry Dog", tomato soup, and jitter-bugging to "Sweet Talking Guy" in the cafeteria were all parts of that giant jigsaw called Feehan assemblies. Spirit days, and plain old fun and good times made Feehan a great place in which to spend six hours. Most Feehanites gave much more. Feehan was a place of paradoxes. Cafeteria chaos contrasted with the silent halls of evening meetings, the antics of a class party compared with the seriousness of a math meet, made Feehan not only a building but something alive with a vivid personality.

Lunch, a welcome break from morning classes, gives freshmen Carolyne Handrigan and Mary Anne Theroux food and relaxation.

Jitter-bugging at lunch period, William Driscoll and Susan Durant draw a crowd, typical of "Greaser Day."

Outside the Feehan hustle-bustle, mascot Kerry-Dog longs for 2:00 and friendly frolics.

Crutches, cakes reflect Feehan

Grabbing a green derby to instigate spirit, Robert Boucher anticipates another Feehan victory in unity and game points.

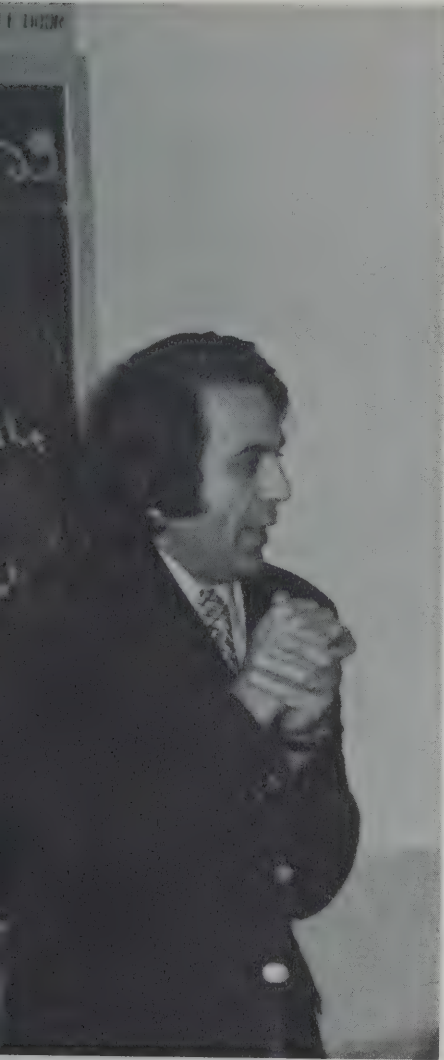

Emphasizing the devastating aftermath of collisions, Mr. Scaturo forcefully instructs his after-school Driver Education class.

Eyeing the clock, students sat impatiently in last period class, waiting for the bell to ring. Quiet halls were transformed into one huge noisy traffic jam as Feehanites rushed to their buses. But to many club and team members, the best part of the day was just beginning. No one could truly describe that wonderful feeling one got just joking with team mates in the locker rooms before running out to do calisthenics in the brisk cold air. Nor could anyone recreate that electric sensation of togetherness achieved while rolling out immense spirit signs with a friend or working together in after-school interest courses such as decoupage classes, weekly medical seminars at Foxboro. This was what Feehan was and what Feehan is all about.

Employing cake decorating techniques learned in Mrs. Schensol's interest course, Carolyn Blythe displays her creative cooking talents.

Rallies keep “big greens” going

At one o'clock on a Friday afternoon, Feehanites marched to the gym for one of the Spirit Committee's famous rallies. Energy, enthusiasm, and above all, active participation of all students were great demonstrations of Feehan vivacity.

Hobbling amid hopeful fans, Robert Zachman typifies the perseverance of the '72 “crutch bunch” football squad.

Manifesting curiosity are Roger Surprenant, Gary Schmidt, Carol Spenser, Sheila Theriault, Anita VanLeeuwen, Mary Theroux, and Robert Welch.

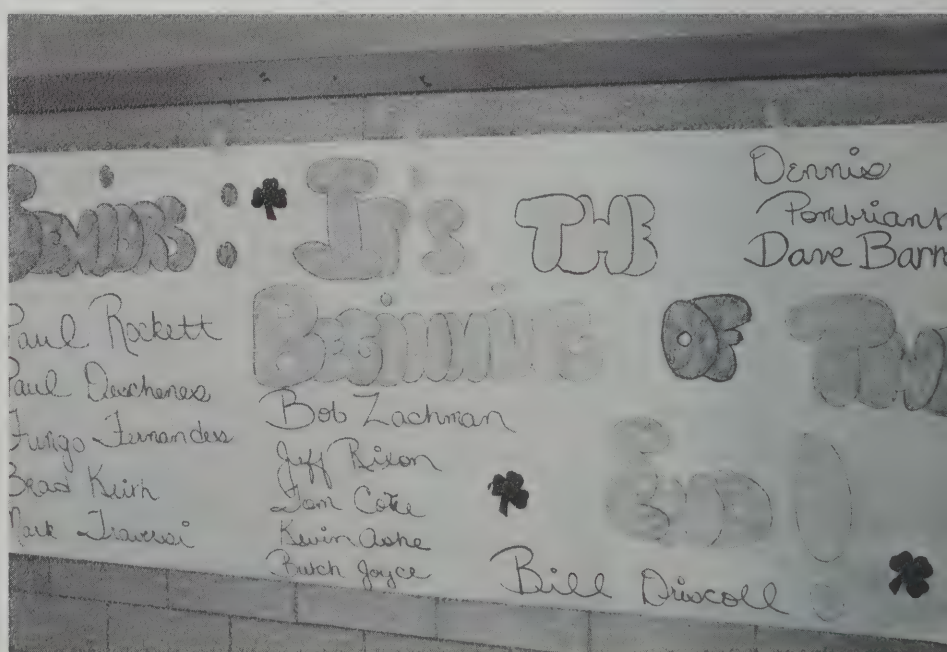

"I'll make you an offer you can't refuse" warns "god-father" Michael Sousa, ready for some action at the Halloween dance.

"Coolest cop in town" is Debra Hebert's boast at Feehan's Halloween dance while Lejuan Brantly keeps his distance from the patrolling officer.

Signs of the time, courtesy of the Spirit Committee, continually decorated corridor walls like this one in support of the football team.

Unusual activities spark interest

Involvement, a big word, did big things and extended to area communities. Teachers and students participated in the March of Dimes walkathon. Activities scheduled throughout the year stimulated student interest. Homecoming week with floats, "Give-a-Damn" week with "Sock-em" day and Appreciation for Life week encouraged class discussions. Results—unity which made efforts worthwhile.

Presenting the Thanksgiving game "Most Valuable Player" football award to Robert Robillard is Mr. Paul O'Boy.

Academics . .

Beyond a Dream

He formed a picture in his mind,
mixed his colors,
and painted his future.

It was a bright picture—in a corner

was the universe revealed
in a simple physics class;
in another corner—
discovery of oneself in religion or biology or literature.

Looking closely, you saw sequins

stuck in the paint—
one never forgotten line
from Shakespeare;
another, a school trip to 1776;
yet another, the satisfaction of conquering a math problem.
Pull back in retrospect,
get the whole idea, feeling . . .

it was academics
that formed his future.

Academics, that palette of late nights, hard work, laughter, sharing.

Academics, that special song—
the hum of a buzz-saw,
sing-song of speech class,
melodious chatter of French.
Academics was sharing.

There, he's done it.

He's painted his picture, his
future,

and we all have to do it—
as we LOOK BEYOND A DREAM.

Pondering Zen Buddhism in religion are Steven Downarowicz, Valery Kapolchok, Nancy Edwards, Sheila Chilli, Daniel Kerrins, James Foley, and Christopher Copley.

"What ever is a joule?" Lee Ann Beaulieu is temporarily stumped as she ponders problems of force and momentum in Physics class.

Accurately figuring the solution of the algebraic quadratic formula are freshmen honor math students Julie Zachman, David Benoit, Christine Kelly and Karen Tatro.

Enjoying team-taught religion class, Michael McKay, Mary Morin, Cynthia Amesbury participate in Sisters Elizabeth and Theresa's projects.

Among volunteer students sharing laughter at the Nazareth Hall School, Connie Bradshaw discovers there is more in a world with happy people.

"You can have a bite if you want." Junior, Cindy McAlice finds fulfillment in assisting special education students at Nazareth Hall.

Religious experience revives Feehan

"Nation shall not lift sword against nation, and neither shall they learn war any more." Theology at Feehan made it evident that Christian ideals have a place in today's world. Religion classes offered something for everyone; all helped the student find his own place in the Christian lifestream. Religious curriculum included such courses as Revelation I and II for Freshmen and Sophomores; elective courses ranged from philosophy to scripture for upperclassmen. "Day by Day", Thanksgiving baskets, visits to Nazareth Hall, synagogues and overnight retreats splashed the palette of Feehan life with added color. Father Brian Harrington's liturgies gave personal meaning to the Masses. Religious celebrations and classes have always been a special segment of Feehanites' continual growth.

Celebrating the Mass is Reverend Brian Harrington as the Body and Blood of Jesus Christ is shared with Pamela Wessman.

Sacrificial offerings of bread and wine, resting by the auditorium entrance reflect the dignity and solemnity of the Mass.

Before giving his students an independent assignment, Mr. Christopher Servant explains the basics of creative writing.

"Journalism isn't all writing", laughs Barbara Joyce, James Williams, Barry Allen, and fellow sausages in their advertisement for waffles.

Studying Homer's Odyssey, freshmen Carol Moore and Christine Kelly explain Penelope's tapestry. Nancy Lee shows a collage.

English department taps students' creative talents.

"To sleep, perchance to dream . . ." But nobody's sleeping in Feehan's English classes. Literature became the foundation for all English studies this year, with emphasis placed more on style and purpose rather than on surface content. The poverty and the corruption in politics of Dickens' time and the generation gap of Shakespeare are paralleled with the slums, the Watergate affair, and the Woodstock generation of today. Juniors and Seniors saw these issues exemplified in the movie version of "Hamlet". Seniors study Andy Warhol and Van Gogh in the "Art and Man" magazine and view the images of man found in modern world literature.

An experimental course in American Studies joined Sophomore English and History classes taught by both departments. Sophomore Honors students developed "Me" books illustrated by audio-visual materials.

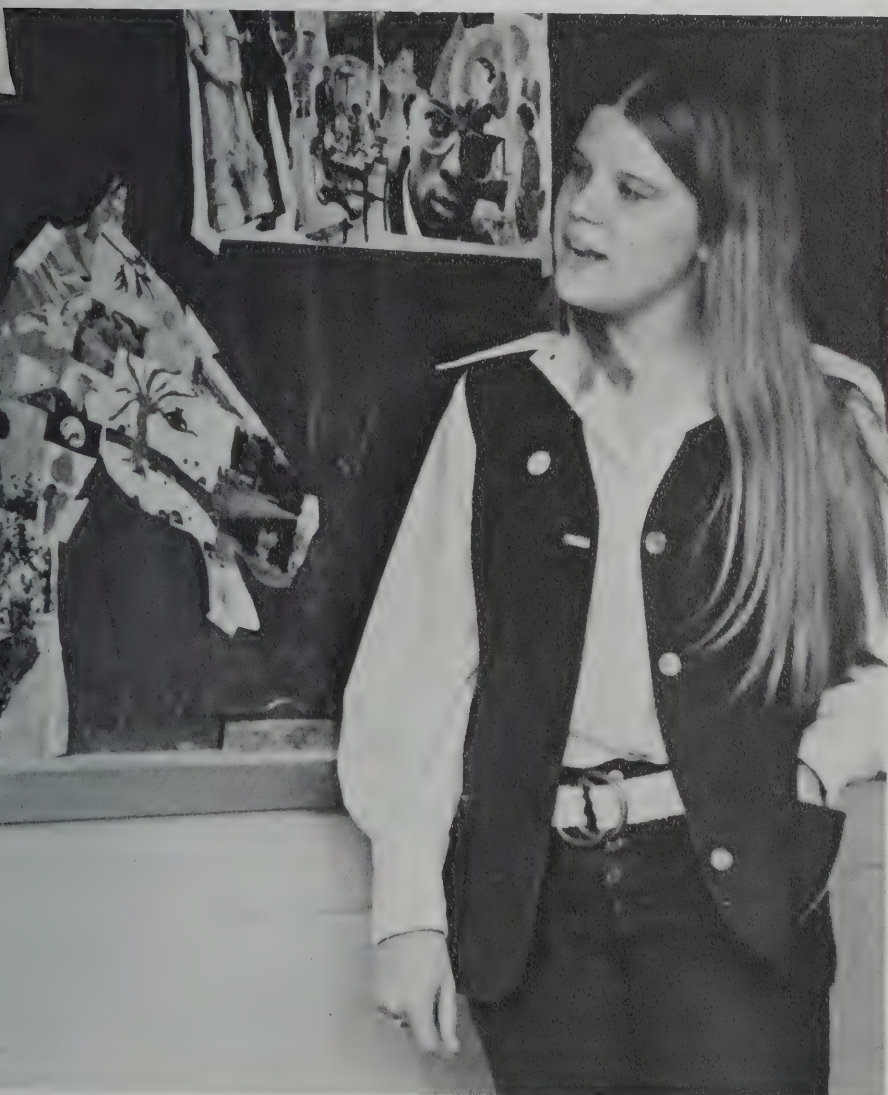

Through the combined efforts of all English classes, Feehan's first news sheet was initiated. A weekly publication written by students for students, this school project encouraged future writers to express their feelings on such subjects as "Who's Who" and fads and fashion at Feehan.

Junior classes displayed their hidden acting talents in their video-tape filming of Shakespeare's Macbeth. With Macbeth as Macbeth and King Duncan as Dunkin Donuts, the junior thespians showed the lighter side of Elizabethian tragedy.

All aspects of the English classes help pupils to become self-discoverers along the road to self-expression through independent thinking.

Exploring their aspects of English, sophomores Nancy Giovani and Marie Chabot combine talents to find the right words to go with their original music for a "Me" book.

Collage is the best way to express an opinion and Robin Gauthier seems to be doing a good job explaining her artwork on the "Westering Spirit".

Social Studies relate world to Feehanites

Where do pilgrims, wars, presidents, ships, crusades, labor disputes and Mr. Neil Lowe's á propos comments come together? In social studies, of course.

The underclassmen study World and American History while the upperclassmen were offered two unique contemporary courses, 20th Century America and Isms.

Team teaching, another academic Feehan First, introduced Sister Patricia Combies and Mr. Neil Loew bringing their cumulative knowledge to the fingertips of any willing student.

"No we were in Germany then, not Vietnam!" Mr. Neil Loew injects a little humor into his Sophomore American history class.

Historians Mr. Gerald Cuniff and Mr. Peter Galligan call in scientist Mr. John Perkosi for mechanical aid.

Catching up on current events during a study, Freshmen Henry Neveux, Edward Garlick, and Eric Mair share a peaceful moment.

Concentrating on Mr. Neil Loew's explanation of a major problem concerning our nation, Joseph Monast, Barbara Joyce, Mary Plante, Christine Aussant, Helen Doyle, and Tracy McKay prepare to defend their own points of view in their discussion in the 20th Century America class.

"I wish someone would invent a history course with no notes" Senior Jeanne Melanson appears engrossed in Mr. Neil Loew's 20th Century America class.

Presenting both sides of the question, Mr. Anthony Gazzola listens to his Isms class discuss communism.

Language Dept. revamps international spectrum

"Buenos Dias" and "Bonjour" acquired new perspective in a renovated language program highlighted with three new teachers. "Grammatical skills were strongly emphasized," sighed first and second year students. Now, however, "life" correlated a genuine interest in foreign culture shedding an antiquated Latin view. Department head, Sister Mary Sheila, enthusiastically appraised new faculty member, Monsieur Donald Costa's forceful teaching technique in which "avoir" and "être" were conjugated thoroughly. Mr. Costa greeted France during February and afterwards shared many humorous experiences acknowledging a "culture shock" with his students.

Sister Sheila journeyed to Quebec City this spring accenting classroom studies with firsthand experience. One French IV class jumped the gun and enjoyed "un petit déjeuner" complete with camambert, brie, and goat's milk cheese, fruit, sweet rolls and jams, coffee and hot chocolate; smoked goose liver and petit fours were added attractions.

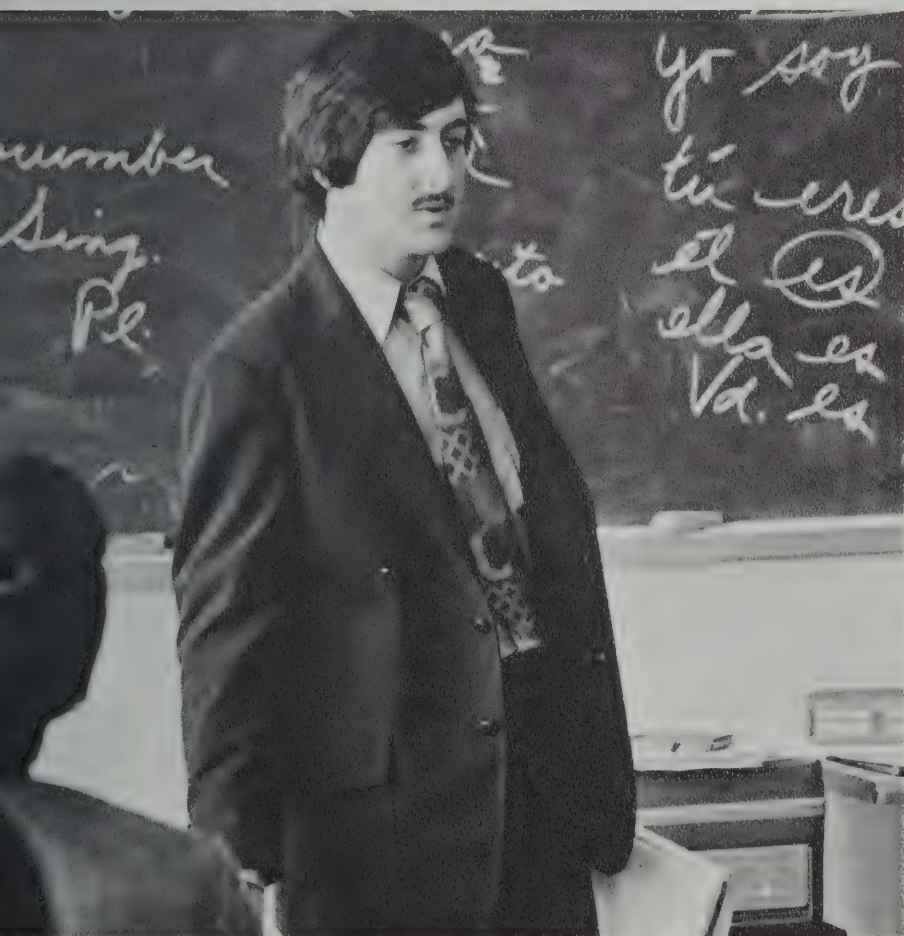

Spanish study welcomed instructors Sister Pauline Lebel and Mr. Stephen Rotondo who concentrated upon "becoming Spanish". Built-in advantages providing native flavor were Gladys Riera from Cuba, and Bishop Feehan's Honduranian exchange student, Felipe Dabdoub, who, at times, even enlightened the teachers. In December, American festivities were transformed by using Mexican customs. Christmas piñatas, handcrafted by the fourth year class, mystified blindfolded Don Quixotes who had as much luck slaying the papier mâché dodgers as that man from La Mancha had encountering windmills. Truly, international dreams glimpsed reality in 1973.

Reflecting a genuine interest in French culture through literature, Doreen Surprenant translates as instructor Sister Mary Sheila helps enthusiastically.

Christmas at Feehan, Latin-American style, features candy filled piñatas made by Spanish IV students. The jolly Santa Claus piñata was constructed by Kathy Sedlak, Barbara Joyce and Kathleen Poholek.

Frenchwomen Georgiana Smith, Karen Benoit, and Susan Cunningham enjoy a French breakfast being served by Nancy Parker.

"¿Que pasa?" asks Mr. Stephen Rotondo stimulating a Spanish conversation.

Ready with the Spanish translation is Darlene VanDenBerghe, while Cynthia Parente is moving ahead.

Mathematics adopts free sequence

Broadening students experience, mathematics coordinator Sister Leona Misto devised flexible course selections. Algebra 2 could be studied freshman year with Modern Introductory Analysis selected in the sophomore more schedule; both courses were formally upper class subjects. Analytic Geometry and Trigonometry was divided into two semesters, aimed at achieving greater depth and understanding. A new dimension unravelled as Creative Math was introduced, geared to the interested rather than the mathematically inclined.

Determining sequential summation enthalls Stephen Diaz in Modern Introductory Analysis class.

"I don't know the scientific name—we always called them 'string things.'" Mary Lou Petti and Christine Aussant explain their Math project on ruled surface to Juniors Jane Olivera, Michelle Lennartz, and John McGee.

Business begins

work-study program

Offering varied practical experience, a work-study program has been initiated by Business Department head Sister M. Kilian. Junior and Senior students benefit from on the job training in nearby community corporations such as Swanks. Filing, typing, and assistant secretarial jobs are provided from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Participating Feehan students make up missed school work independently, developing maturity and responsibility as end-products of their efforts.

Computing federal spending challenges Diane Casale to perfect her skills.

Hand poised over the keyboard, Lynda Ryng hesitates, hoping the total to be correct.

Sister M. Kilian relates the do's and don'ts of business regulations while Mary Barrows views the lighter side.

Unique experiences spark scientific students' discovery

Exploring the realms of physics, biology, physiology and chemistry, the science department has innovated several exciting changes. Though science remains a discipline that is rooted in the centuries, Feehanites have this year viewed open-heart surgery, participated in night astronomy observations, dissected a fetal pig, and took part in the now established Project Physics course. Sr. Rose Angela McLellan heads the team of instructors. Perhaps because of the challenging labs and experiments, the investigations into the intricacies of human life, and the good humor and guidance of the science department, Feehan students will be inspired to continue in science.

Temperature rises as Mr. Santanastaso sleuths unexpected results in a chemical comparison.

Displaying a gamut of emotions, victim Kathi Arenburg is blood typed by Sue Corbeil.

Posing a simple and logical solution to a velocity problem is Steve Murphy, gesturing and smiling his support, as John Iwuc momentarily abandons English for science.

Tissue observations remain incomplete while Kathy Sedlak quietly previews coming events.

Applicable courses complete curriculum

Home Economic classes and the shop course gave students a chance to mobilize their hobbies and interests into the curriculum for valuable experience and credit. These students learned to get one step ahead of the game. In addition they learned to budget their expenses, tell the difference between fabrics and gained other valuable, helpful, household hints. The boys' chef class exhibited their talents preparing a delightful lunch for the Bishop when he visited the Religion department early in the year.

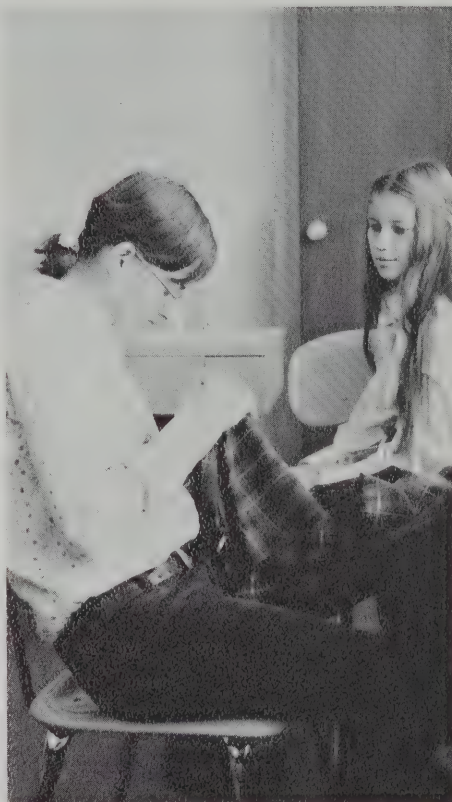

In shop class, text books were replaced by useful tools associating those interested in carpentry and construction with the fundamentals of math and science connected to related principles.

Both of these courses successfully brought education to the everyday lives of the students and made learning a relevant experience.

Smiling with satisfaction, the job almost complete, Philip Eighmy sands his self constructed book case.

Hurrying to finish her Home Ec project is Diane Fougere, while Susan Stapleton lends moral support.

"Professionally speaking—let the girls finish the dishes next period," plots Paul Rhilinger.

Artists explore realm of color

Green, purple, and orange paint may not turn everybody on, but art lovers really find themselves in Sister Veronica's art classes. In still-lifes and abstract Mondrian designs, the fine arts flourish at Feehan. Pastel drawings of New England autumn and mixed-media sketches of pairs shown regularly in the display case demonstrated to students and faculty alike Bishop Feehan's most unheralded talents. Art classes, under the direction of Sister M. Veronica Fay, explored color and design with poster paint, charcoal, watercolor and many different methods. In April students got a chance to exhibit their work at the annual art festival.

T-Bars and large brown folders are familiar sights in the corridors as Mechanical Drawing pupils, under the watchful eye of Sister Veronica, practiced precision drawing, preparing them for careers in engineering and architecture.

Carefully Donald Demers measures an angle of a prospective masterpiece.

"A pear is a pear is a pear", declares David Keane as he transfers the image to paper.

Athletics . . .

Beyond a dream

Before a game lockers are the source of nervous excitement.

Frustration mounts with:

a torn sneaker lace,
a misplaced sock,
a ripped uniform
a forgotten game plan, or a personality clash. Yet inside that room there lies something that is unconquerable—the feeling of PRIDE.

Creating a united force in every athlete, we have become a harder team to defeat. This pride fills an athlete with confidence in himself and his teammates. Thus nervousness ends, game plans are remembered,

socks are shared,
laces are replaced,
and clashes end in handshakes.

Victory or defeat does not end there. It continues on with us through life. We acquire more than skills and knowledge of sports. We learn of life and see the way life could be BEYOND A DREAM.

Looking as though he has fallen asleep Dennis Pombriant soars over the high jump again.

Definitely having fallen asleep, Susan Pollis rests a moment before competition on the girl's track team.

"General" Mr. Paul O'Boy, leads part of his battalions, Ronald Lemonde, William Driscoll, Mark Cuddy and David Rixon into the fray.

Games, exercises train students for healthy future

Relaxing in the whirlpool, Paul Deschenes relieves aches and pains of daily football practice.

Though lacking the usual equipment, physical education classes engage in games of Philadelphia kick, wiffle ball, and hockey, crab style, through the imagination of Mr. Anthony Gazzola, Mr. Gerald Gunniff, and Mrs. Elaine Condon, girls' instructor. When spring comes, physical education classes move outside and play soccer, soft ball, or run the track. Dressed in green shorts, a pair of sneakers, and white shirts, students are given a chance to win the President's Physical Fitness Award, as well as achieving personal satisfaction and having fun at the same time.

For another gym class softball game, Mrs. Condon readies the starting roster.

Brian Walsh, Stephen Almeida, Kevin O'Coin, and John Johnston struggle to get that ball.

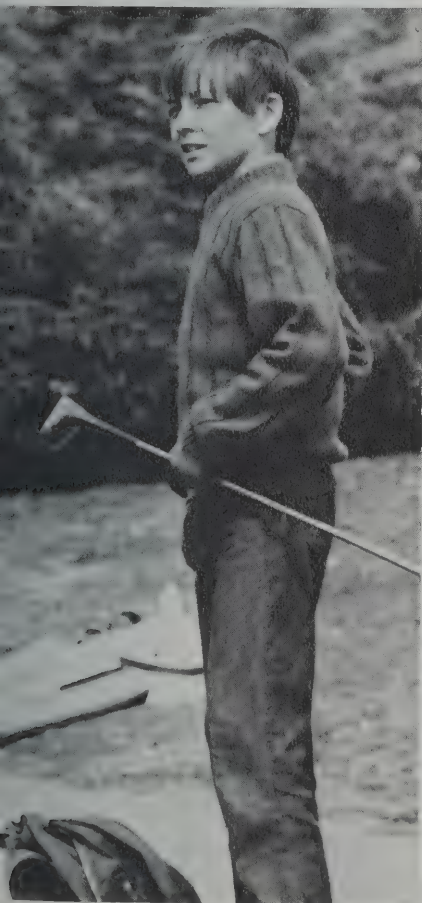

Concentrating, Scott Gunning aims for the flag, then eagerly watches the ball in flight.

Cool and collected, Arthur Anderson sizes up the course and plans his strategy.

Feehan Golf team 1972: Scott Gunning, Coach Neil Loew, Arthur Anderson, James Foley, Mark Flaherty, Gary Sanocki are ready and willing to take on all opponents.

Swinging their way, Shamrocks come out tops

Coached by Mr. Neil Loew, the golf team enjoyed its most prosperous season ever. Senior, Scott Gunning, besides excelling in regular league meets also played in tournaments as distant as California and Florida. Scott has caught the eye of many college golf scouts in the area.

The team boasts a 15-1-1 record and such achievements as second in their league, third in Southeastern Massachusetts only falling behind Barnstable and New Bedford, as well as being champions of the Northeastern Division of the Southeastern Massachusetts Scholastic League. Practice at Heather Hill golf course entails determination, long hours of concentration, never ending work on form and putting. Coach Loew is looking forward to as good if not a better season for '73.

Up and over, Susan Pollis knows in this position, "what goes up must come down."

Determined Christine Bergh moves ahead of her BayView opponent.

Added at-track-tion— spring fever strikes girls

Once again the girls proved themselves worthy in athletic competition. Tuesday and Thursday practices were conducted by Mrs. Elaine Condon and Sister Rose Angela. But even more, success can be attributed to extra practice hours and the all out effort of the team, plus natural ability. Ranging from the broad jump to the dashes to the mile, the girls' enthusiasm and team spirit came through.

Susan Pombriant drives forward crucial inches in the broad jump. Girls Track team, front row: Juliet Flynn, Doreen VanDenBerghe, Tracy McKay, Lynette Dulude, Ruthann Gildea, Nancy Grenier, Karen Gibbons; second row: Renee Marshall, Georgiana Smith, Mary Brais, Theresa Brillon, Susan Ciorocco, Suzanne Pombriant, Patricia McDonagh, Sandra Achin, Donna Benoit, Christine Bergh, Susan Pollis, Carol Sedlak, Coleen Holmes, Coach Elaine Condon.

New events . . .

new meets . . .

new league . . .

Practice started the second Monday of March with fifty-five boys out for the team. This number diminished to thirty-five as hard practice eliminated many. The record of four wins, five losses was evaluated as a good season in the difficult Bristol County League. Next season, besides being in a new league, many experienced players will return in weight events and distance running. Two new events, the javelin and pole vaulting, will spread the team thin, but give more boys, more ways in which to show talent.

Gripping the shot put, Paul Deschenes with a mighty effort sets it free.

New coach . . . new season . . . new ballgame .

Through the experience and enthusiasm of new coach, Sister Margaret Salisbury, the girls' team took to the playing field and usually came off victorious. Despite the efforts of long time regulars, many rookie underclassmen, and the team's exuberant expectations, this year was a year for gaining experience and gathering hopes for seasons to come. Practices were started off by running a mile; then it was skill drills consisting of throwing, catching, and batting. The girls' four wins to three losses is an accurate recording of game standings but does not by any means record the greatness of their spirit. Unfortunately the "butterflies" numbered too many and led to numerous early-game errors.

The games took place during the months of March, April, May, and June.

Small but mighty, junior Cynthia McAlice gets ready to smack that ball over and beyond the outfielders.

With graceful ease, Kathleen Byrnes throws in strike number three retiring the sides in the ninth inning, making it a shamrock victory.

Baseball—our forgotten sport

Few spectators mark Feehan's baseball season. Late in March, the season started with twenty-five boys out for the team under the leadership of Coach Gerald Cuniff. Shamrocks tallied a record of eight wins and eleven losses for their final season in the Bristol County League.

Although next season Coach Cuniff can look forward to many returning lettermen, many key positions will be open. Several untested pitchers will be given a chance to prove themselves. Such potential, backed by student support, could provide the ingredients necessary for a winning season.

Packed with power and speed, senior Joseph Monast hurls another strike toward home plate.

Bat gripped, feet planted, Stephen Murphy sends the ball out of the opponents reach.

Number one squad cheers with number one fans

Mid-summer practice started, the squad making sure that mounds would go up, splits would go down, flips would go over. When school started, the real work began; practice daily, sign making, rally planning, kept every cheerleader busy from September to March. Besides cheering for football and basketball teams, the girls entered competitions of their own. Already two trophies have been brought home, making all the bumps and bruises worthwhile. Head cheerleader was Marybeth Ralph, moderator, Sister Mary Josepha Haskins.

Greeting a victorious team, cheerleaders, Sandra Copley and Marybeth Ralph lead fans in a "We knew you could do it" cheer.

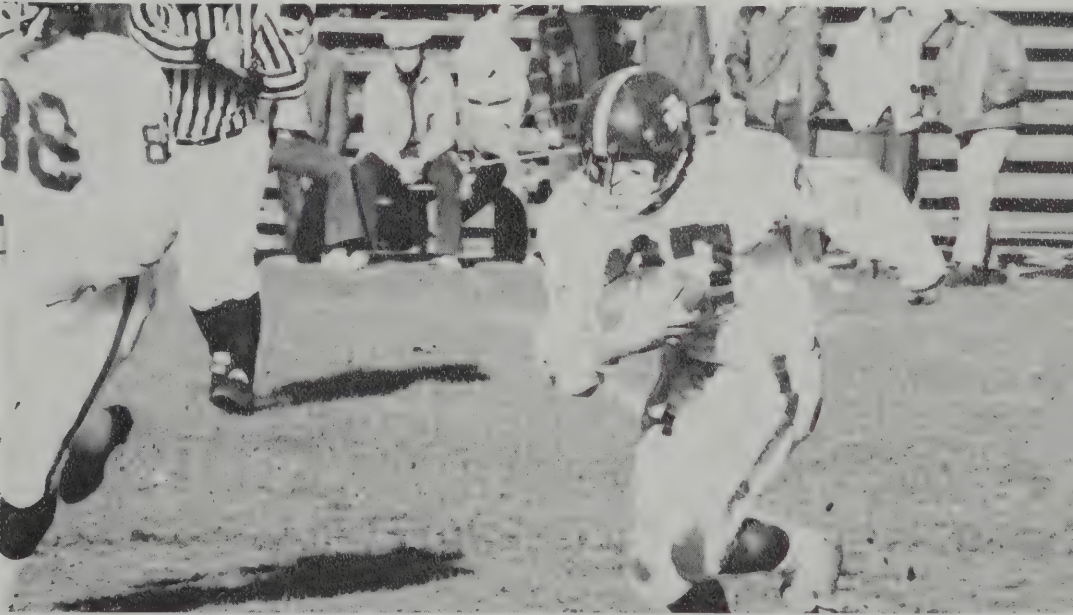

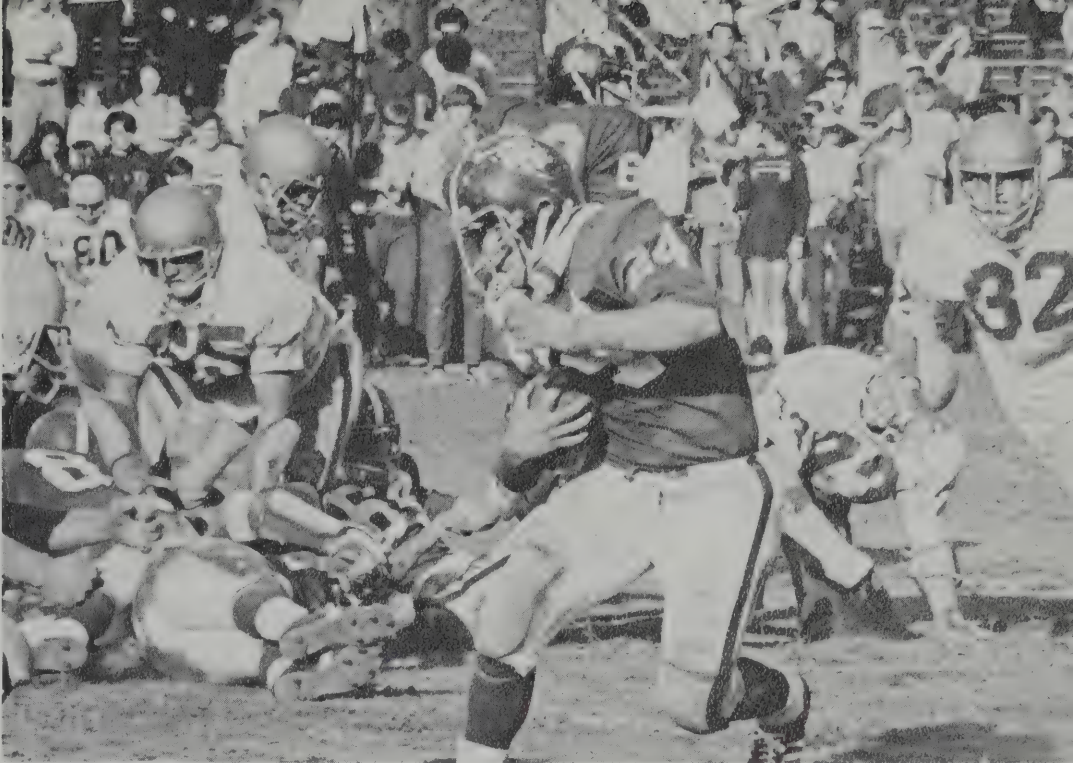

Making her last football game her best, senior Lois Laverdure cheers at homecoming.

Cheerleaders are Nancy Parker, Diane Casale, Susan Donnelly, Marybeth Ralph, Lois Laverdure, Giselle Soulard, Barbara MacLeod, Carol Collins, Jean Berg, Paula Picard, Sandra Copley, Susan Mulry, and Debra Temple.

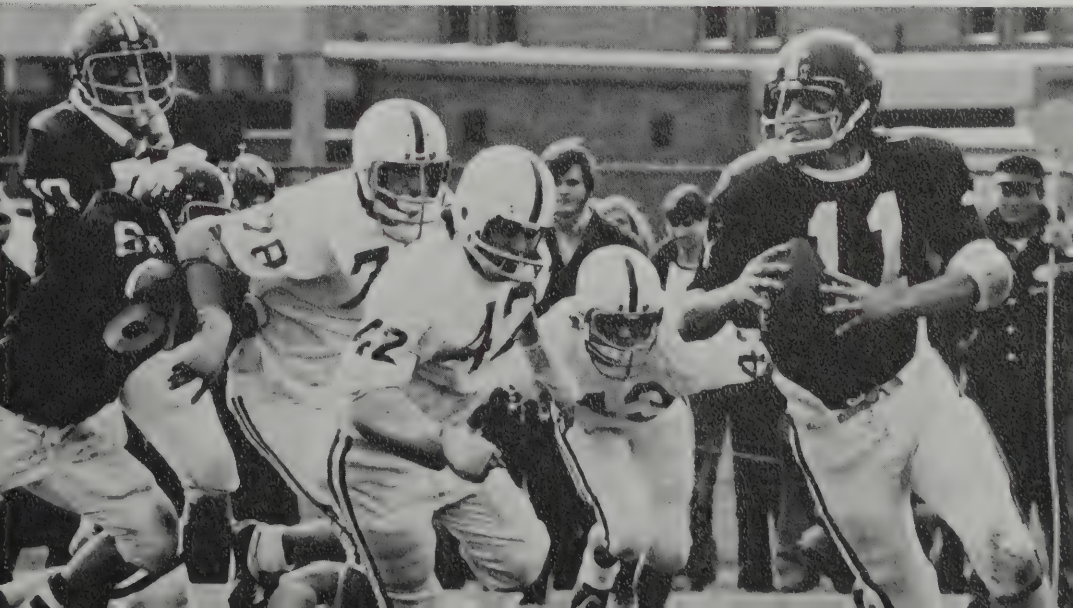

Ball held firmly, Anthony Castro looks, decides, then moves toward that goal line.

Confronting his Coyle opponent, Paul Deschenes utilizes his running strategy.

Shamrock number twenty-seven, Robert Robillard heads toward opponent's end zone behind Douglas Weldon's backing.

Mark Traversi, in true quarterback style, evades Attleboro pursuers and looks to throw.

Injury plagued team fights on

Determination, will to win despite the number of players in plaster casts, marked this year's football team. From the start, injuries were so many that no one played the same position all season. Often the same players had to play both offense and defense. Practice began with double sessions including conditioners like running through tires, belly crawling, pounding of helmets and pads. Real workouts began with regular practice led by Coach O'Boy with his assistants Loew, Servant, and McKenna. True to Feehan tradition of "Support our team, win or lose," coaches, teachers, administrators, and students demonstrated their loyalty at rallies and games. No matter what the score, cheerleaders, band, spirit squad and fans were back at school waiting to welcome the returning team. Their 3-6 record can never measure or express the grit, trust, and perseverance that characterized Feehan's '72-'73 Team.

Supporting their team, whatever the final score, Feehanites cheer enthusiastically every Saturday afternoon.

Planning new strategies from the sidelines, are Coaches Paul O'Boy and Neil Loew.

Struggling, Paul Mayer, Paul Deschenes, Robert Robillard, and Dennis Fernandes attempt to "block those points."

Frosh come out, shamrock style

Frosh season started two days after school began with a meeting and then it was out to the field. Donning T-shirts, sneakers, and sweats, (not the usual football outfit) they did a galore, yelling in unison, half to keep count and half to keep from feelin the intense pain and fatigue of early season conditioning. After receiving their uniforms, the size problem some had was remedied by a little tape and the team was ready to challenge all. Coaches Louis Gazzola and Peter Galligan admitted the biggest game was the Attleboro-Feehan tie. With one minute to go in the game, the Frosh tied it up, much to the dismay of Attleboro and to the delight of Feehan fans standing along the sidelines. Evidently, as their season progressed, the Frosh improved considerably upholding Feehan's football tradition.

Varsity teams play tourneys

After an 11-1 league season, Feehan girls' basketball team defended their '72 title in S.E. Massachusetts Invitational tournament, Division B. On February 19, they won over Westport High, 53-39 and entered the semi-finals. Boys' varsity with a 16-2 record, became semi-finalists in New England Catholic Invitational tournament, winning over St. Mary's, Cambridge. In the Tech Tourney, they scored 70-65 over Cardinal Spellman High in a thrilling double overtime. Playing at Boston Gardens against Cathedral High, they lost in overtime play, 64-62, when Cathedral sank a basket in the last two seconds.

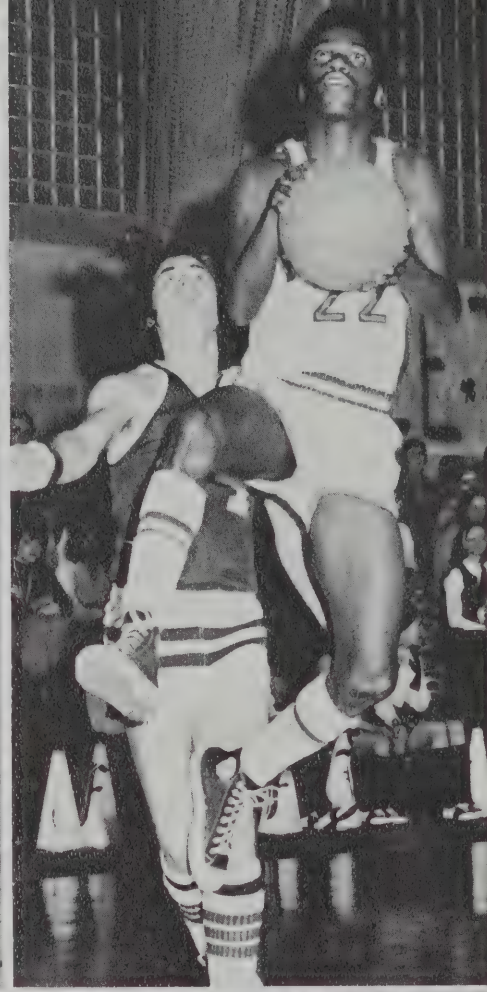

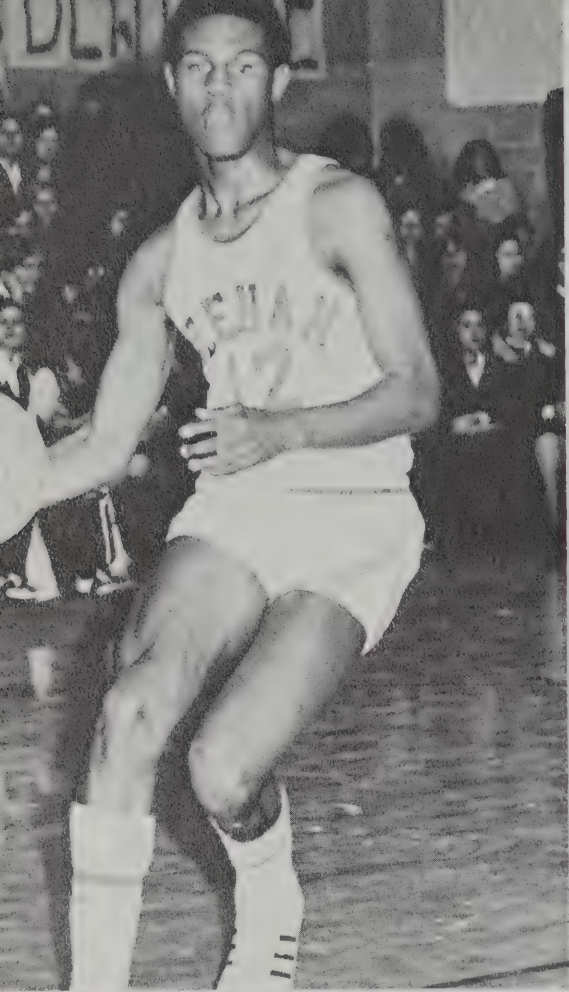

Driving hard down Boston Gardens court, Buddy Brantley works for his usual lay-up.

With a turn-around jump shot, Tom Lynch adds two more to the Feehan score.

Ready and aiming, closely guarded Mary Lou Petti tenses for shooting while Chris Basile watches for a rebound. Chris placed on the Girls' All Star team.

Possible dream— Feehan Tech Team . . . Yes

Starting out with an unbeatable attitude, the talented Shamrock basketball team realized their potential. Early in the season, the Shamrocks lost a heart-breaking overtime game to Attleboro. Rebounding with twelve straight victories, Feehan made Attleboro it's thirteenth victim. The Shamrocks became the first Feehan team to participate in the Tech Tournament and the Catholic Memorial Tournament.

Smooth and cool as always, Alvin Wilson, carries the ball down court. Eyes on the basket, Lejuan Brantly moves to capture two more points. Ignoring his Case opponent, Richard Pineault stands ready to shoot for the hoop. Catching Case off guard, Thomas Lynch moves in to tie it up. "Up and in you gotta put that ball" William Lang does just that. Quickly locating his target, William Driscoll makes a fast decision to shoot or pass.

Girls defend first place for third year

With only two practices per week, a team effort of combined individual talents was spurred on by high expectations of victory. Accuracy at the foul line was just one of the girls' assets. The ability to plan effective strategy from the inside as well as the outside distinguished this team from many others. This year the girls participated in fewer games—a key factor stimulating tremendous effort and realization that “winning” is a must. Personal idiosyncracies were reconciled under the guidance of coaches Sister Rose Angela and Elaine Condon, and transformed with the team objective in mind. As champions of eastern Massachusetts and leaders of their conference, the girls are third year defenders of the number one spot. The varsity consists of three seniors and five juniors backed up by developing underclassmen. The girls have reason to be proud and to believe that beyond these todays, success will be within their grasp.

Lending moral support to Kathleen Byrnes, Patricia Lambert and Christine Basile observe closely.

Activities . . .

Beyond a Dream

New ideas, new activities
sprouting,

a new year began
in a whirl of color.

Spirit committee inspired a full scale attack
on apathy.

Corridors bedecked in paper chains, slogans—

"All the way with the big green machine."

"Marshmallow them,"

"Lick 'em,"

Show we are behind our team."

We cared, we were alive
and well and spirited!

Feehan students stood up—to build props for "Carousel," to gain and protect cafeteria rights,

to student-teach day,

to decorate for dances.

Clubs, committees, teams—all united

to conquer obstacles,

to soar high,

blossoming to a single goal—

"Feehan First!"

Above and beyond the others
we searched—

BEYOND A DREAM.

Linking students and administration are: Robert Boucher, Mr. Louis Gazzola, Marie Casale, Neil Walsh, Jeffrey Rixon, S. Patricia Harrington, and Lynda Stowell.

S.C. promotes somewhere to go, something to do

"Looking forward to great tomorrows," the Student Council set out to unite the school, and to incite spirit and interest in varied activities. Committees co-ordinated their efforts to initiate such projects as "Greaser, Boot'em, and Derby" days promoting "fun-raising." The council hosted the S.E. Mass. convention, March 23, paving the way for future council success.

Pondering questions of student-faculty conflict are Kathy Sedlak, Sister Theresa Sparrow, and Barbara Joyce as Christine Basile explains her point.

Helping to make "greaser day" a success are alumni faculty Mr. Louis Gazzola, Mr. Christopher Servant, Mr. Anthony Gazzola, Mr. Peter Galligan.

Performing a hilarious rendition of "Bert and I", Kevin Ashe is accompanied by Al Wilson, Bill Boulet and Neal Dolan—"aeyep!"

Rejoicing at peace, Feehan offers thanks

Plans for "Give-A-Damn" week were upset this year, but no one minded. With the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement, the United States ended twelve year involvement in South East Asia. The scheduled peace moratorium and the letter writing planned by the student body encouraging the release of P.O.W.'s were cancelled and replaced by a Mass of student thanksgiving. Now as we "look beyond a dream", we do so with the encouraging promise of peace for our time and always.

Hoping for a brighter tomorrow, Feehan students proclaim their desire to live in peace in a world of free people.

Living in a world of crisis and splendor, of laughter and tears, students realize the importance of "Giving-A-Damn" in Feehan and everywhere.

Spirit committee decorates Feehan

Adding a special note of comedy to rallies with original skits, the Spirit Committee achieved recognition time and again throughout the year. They aroused enthusiasm for important games by hanging colorful paper chains from ceilings, making corridor length "Walk on Attleboro" floor signs, and distributing lollipops for Lick 'em Day. Support for football, basketball, track and baseball teams, was increased with student and teacher participation in such activities as Lick'em and Derby Days. "Feehan Shamrock" pins could be seen on the majority of lapels, and signs that graced each and every locker for football season were still clinging there to support other winning teams throughout the year.

Chains of Shamrock Spirit entangle Claire Parker, Susan Durant, Claire Dalton, Tracy McKay.

Celebrating a hope for defeat of Attleboro, the Spirit Committee, clockwise from Susan Pollis (bedecked with hat), Patricia McDonagh, Jeff Maxwell, Catherine Murphy, Kathleen Brynes, Tracy McKay, Georgiana Smith, Claire Dalton, Marie Casale, Cynthia McAlice, do a prophetic skit.

Marching units work over time

Saturday mornings were not sleeping times for drill team, color guard, or majorettes. Their varied services, needing much practice, consisted of half time shows, rallies, competitions, and parades. Every Saturday at eight found them practicing on the football field before the games. Their repertoire included twirling fire batons, dipping and swooping flags, and the Charleston done to the tune of "five-foot two, eyes are blue."

Drill team members kneeling are Susan Carvahlo, Pamela Sullivan, Teresa Castro, Rayann Gilmore, Debra Castro, Francine Viens, Lois Wims, Mary Morin, Cindy Amesbury, Carol Sedlak, Mary Cronan, Lynn Mondor, Linda Boucher; standing: Susan Reynolds, Joan Rhilinger, Karen McKuen, Helenann Plath, Elizabeth Dupee, Linda Curtis, Julie Zachman, Theresa Morin, Rosemary Healy, Dolores McDonagh.

Heading the majorettes is Colleen Fitzpatrick; standing: Janet DeSantis, Shannon Doran, Mary Brais, Lori Adams, Kathleen McCall, Kathleen Sedlak, Sheila Chilli.

NHS competes in academic bowls

NHS appears on network T.V.

From the most wide-eyed freshman to "knowing" seniors, the National Honor Society has emphasized integration rather than alienation. Various projects included an Alumni Bowl to celebrate homecoming, and representatives to participate in "It's Academic", Channel 5 T.V. Another program recognizing excellence was the Spanish Honor Society, promoting universal friendship with penpals.

Recipients of the 1973 National Merit Scholarship letters are Christine Bergh, Clare Shepherd. Jody Ferland is absent from the picture.

Flashback— end product— beyond a dream

Staffers learned yearbook tactics in a March mini-course. Two Flashback firsts—positions were opened to juniors and a yearbook assembly featured a preview slide presentation. Six “fortunate” students, with moderator, Sister Mary Enda, traveled 33 hours to Camp Kanuga, North Carolina, winning second prize cover design and a copy award. The staff survived on Burger Chef, lollipops, and a little patience, always looking beyond a dream.

With responsibility of decisions, deadlines and “doughnut breaks” managing editor, Carolyn Blythe, and editor-in-chief, Mark O’Neil, remain in good humor.

Helping sell the '73 Flashback business staff members Kathryn Gautieri, Paula Jurdack, Cynthia Midon, Linda Ryng, Wendy DeMayo, Lynette Dulude, Judith Fisher, Moderator Sister Margaret Salisbury, Carol Desilets, Clare Shepherd and Mary Lynn Baldini had a successful year, selling over 450 books.

"Don't read it like you hate it," copy staff, Kathleen Sedlak, Barbara Joyce, Michelle Lennartz, Patricia McDonagh, Christina Bergh warn editor, Christine Basile.

Developing hundreds of yearbook masterpieces are photographers Walter Landry and Paul Poirier in the hidden dark room.

Laughing at atrocious mistakes, funny captions, are Flashback typists Denise Cloutier, Sheila Chilli, Helen Doyle.

Feehan gyrations explode with “fun” revival

Transforming dances into more than Saturday night time-fillers, students vibrated to entertaining band, “Cricken Foot”. Fun penetrated functions—the jitter-bugging greaser, the bearded Sadie Hawkin bumpkins. With the contagious spirit, dads bunny-hopped beside hokey-poking daughters at the annual event. Juniors and seniors achieved a Feehan first in a shared prom. Characterizing all dances, the prom theme, “A time for us” emphasized the exhilaration of being one’s self, of reaching for fun as a treasure to grasp, for now . . . for always.

Daddy’s little girl bunny hops with pop untiringly around the cafeteria as dads silently suffer waiting for 11 o’clock to come.

Enjoying the pleasant atmosphere and company, Jeannette Hermans, her escort, Debra Hebert and Paul Neveux listen to music and converse.

Seniors, juniors share prom at Colonial Hilton

Fun, warmth, friendship, and love, put them together and what did we get? "A time for us." This was the night of January 31 at the Junior-Senior Prom at the Colonial Hilton as couples danced to music by the "Clef-tones". A double court reigned with Senior queen and Junior princess as all girls shared a lovely evening with their Prince Charmings.

Harmonizing "When the children are asleep," are Carrie Piperidge (Susan Pollis) and Mr. Enoch Snow, (Robert Gamache), dreaming of their own children.

Starkeeper (Timothy Wheelock) polishes the stars in the waiting room of heaven joyfully anticipating the arrival of Billie Bigelow.

Captain (Daniel Rogers), Carrie, and Mr. Snow offer consolation to Julie Jordan (Marie Chabot) holding Billie Bigelow (Bernie Poirier) after his suicide.

Dramatists employ new media

Talent was "bursting out all over," as the 1973 drama club began practicing for the spring production of Carousel. Introducing special effects, the first scene was filmed and projected on stage. Emphasizing different aspects of stage production, interested students learned about lighting, make-up, costuming, and general behind the scenes assistance, as well as acting. Using video-tape, drama coach Mr. James Haskins, pointed out weaknesses in each performance to produce the best possible product.

Portraying the high and mighty Mrs. Mullin, Kathleen Winters frowns at the thought of her carousel barker "fooling" with Julie Jordan.

"My boy Bill!" Billy Bigelow, played by Bernard Poirier, sings of his soon-to-be-born son (or daughter).

Acting out the final scene of graduation in Carousel are Thespians Michelle Nadeem, Julie Zackman, Thomas Cuddy, Mary Theroux, and Michelle Silva.

Medical Careers set new pace

Loaded with activities, the program for Medical Careers Club included addresses by paraprofessional, Mr. Bridges, Sister Thomas Moore, and representatives from local hospitals. Initiated also was a practical first aid course and a trip to Mass. General Hospital to view open heart surgery. Motivated and activated members pushed forward with purpose and stamina.

Future Medical Professionals are, front row: Paula Jurdak, Kathy McCall, Chris Aussant, Karen Champagne, Paul Neveux, Pat Wishnevsky; second row: Theresa McKay, Nancy Parker, Jane Cote, Edita Van Leeuwen, Sue Ciarocco, Carol Sedlak; third row: Cindy McAlice, Carol Desilets, Kathleen Byrnes, Ann Ferland, Elaine DeSantis; fourth row; Theresa Brillon, Suzanne St. Jean, Robin Medas, Karen Benoit, Cynthia Sibilia; top row; Suzanne Charon, Georgianna Smith, Catherine Dion, Mary Brais, Karen Johnson, Janet Barry.

Planning future Medical career projects, president, Chris Aussant and secretary, Kathy McCall listen to moderator Sister Elizabeth McAuliffe's advice.

Chorus succeeds in making their kind of music

Achieving a new musical sound, utilizing well-blended female voices, the chorus made this year unique with their Christmas and spring presentations. Choral members made many small presentations at local civic club meetings during the year. The chorus performed at the December concert with the band and drama club and in the spring presented "A Musical Review" an exciting song medley of music past and present.

"Diminuendo", directs Sister Mary Evangela as chorus rehearses for the final Christmas concert. Accompanist, Mary Vincent checks over piano arrangements.

Band arouses spirit with hall parade.

At football half-time, a rally, or a parade down school corridors to build enthusiasm, the Bishop Feehan Band adds color and talent to extra-curricular activities. In conjunction with the drama club and chorus, the band performed at Christmas a medley of songs from "Fiddler on the Roof" and a flute quintet from "Nutcracker Suite."

Sister Mary Evangela directs these students to increase variety in school life. Officers are President, Mary Lou Petti; Vice-President, Paul Rhilinger; Secretary, Helen Young; and Treasurer, Jeanne Motyl.

Trumpeters Helen Young, Mary-Lou Petti, Donald Fortin, blast forth. Band members Theresa DeBlois, Christine Cassels, Theresa Radnor, Paul Poirier, Paul Rhilinger, Robert Poirier, Rita Young, Georgiana Smith, Kathleen Poholek, Marie Chabot, Helen Young, Rosemary Hastings, Paul Desmarais, Joseph Motyl, Mary-Lou Petti, Victor LeCasse, Beverly Belmore, Nancy Grenier, Christopher Swift, Dwight Radnor, Steven Santoro, Roger Theroux, Joan Motyl, Donald Fortin, Lisa Grenier, Julie Maselbas, Jeanne Motyl, and Claire Dalton, pause before marching over the football field.

Chess orientated students revive warfare at Feehan.

Pawn to king four, knight to bishop three—these sounds are heard every Tuesday afternoon as the chess club opens its weekly warfare session. Headed by Sister Leona Misto, who often participates in combat, the chess club enters several outside tournaments. After an hour or so of intense concentration the victory cry of "Checkmate" resounds. Members leave mentally exhausted, educated, fulfilled and ready to take on any avid follower of Bobby Fischer.

Future grand-master, John McGee, demonstrates winning tactics to fellow chessman, James DeWitt.

Contemplating how to put Mark O'Neil in checkmate is John Shang.

"There, that should do it," Mary Jorge, after much thought, makes a critical move.

Library resources promote students' initiative, learning

Over 10,000 volumes in the Feehan library provided the individual student with a working atmosphere and resources for independent research and study. Accommodating approximately 75 students at a time, the library resources included selections from both fiction and non-fiction and many resource books, newspapers and magazines.

Students had access to all materials and were encouraged to use them. The library was staffed by full time media generalist, Sister Mary Faith. Service was also provided by Mrs. Robert Deam and 25 student assistants.

Soul searching philosophers are Edita Van Leeuwen, Mary Plante, Jean Melanson and Mr. Louis Gazzola.

Extensively researching a philosophy term paper are Lynn Dulude, Mary Lou Petti and Carol Desilets.

Always able to provide the missing link of research material is librarian, Mrs. Deam.

Media center houses A-V software, hardware.

With the addition of the video tape machine purchased through the efforts of candy selling students, Feehan's Media Center provided more students with modern A-V equipment assisting them in study.

Students often dropped by to listen privately to a Shakespearean play. At the same time, others watched highlights of a basketball game on video tape.

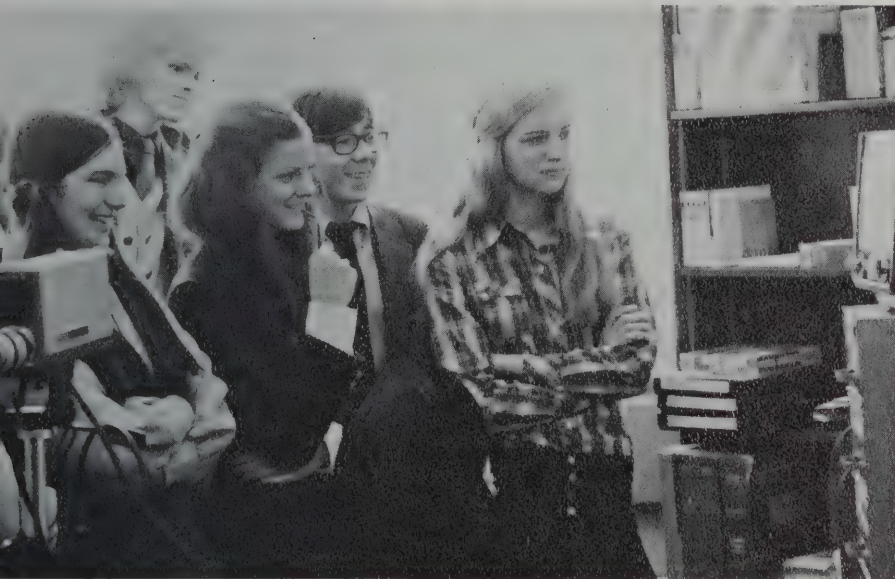

The media center was an essential element in the instructional services of Feehan geared to the best interest of the students.

"Lights, camera, action." Susan Pollis expertly focuses on members of her Speech and Drama class.

Giving the thumbs up sign of approval is Sister Mary Evangela to newsman William Lang.

Checking out the over head projector, S. M. Vincent Ferrer keeps media center equipment in topnotch condition.

Ourselves . . . Beyond a Dream

He's real.
He's alive.
In the midst of 700 faces
He stands out.
He has his own way
Of smiling,
Of slamming his locker,
Of sharing lunch
With a friend.

He thinks his own way
Be it pro-McGovern or pro-Nixon,
Or even for or against cafeteria food.
He's got a certain style.
He's got gusto.
Yet he is only one,
A single starlet
of the perfect dandelion,
A tiny segment of the whole,
1/700 of the school.
But he is an important part
Of that special something Called Feehan,
Of Feehan's hopes and aspirations.
He's helping at Nazareth Hall
And he's out cleaning up
The Ten Mile River.
He was with us at classes, games,
Rallies, dances, and assemblies.
He's a part of us.
We're a living people.
And we're real.
We're alive.
As we look

BEYOND A DREAM

Homework is easier when Sister Patricia Harrington helps, insists math students William Driscoll, Christopher Copley, Stephen Hilton, Neil Dolan, Robert Boucher, and Peter Perry.

"Checkmate," says Senior Robert Lincourt as Sister Leona looks for an easy way out.

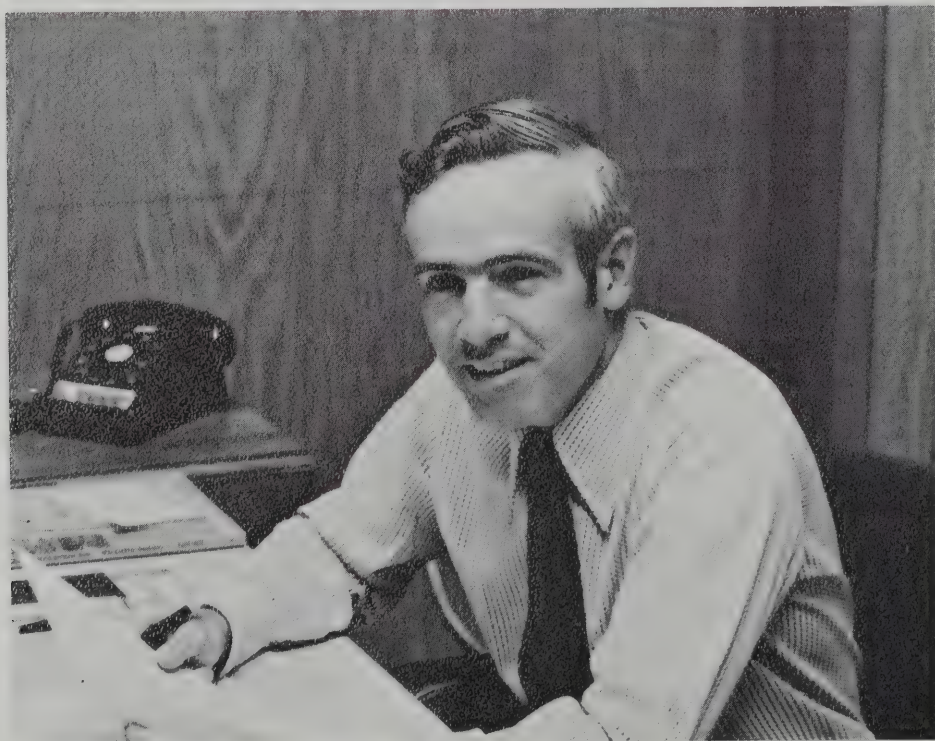

Mr. Santanastaso, Providence College, B.S., University of Mass. M.A., physics, astronomy instructor, marks the spot as he shows Senior Gary Sanocki the landing site of Apollo XVII.

Administration defines Feehan's roles, rules.

With administrative duties taking a lot of their time, Sister Therese Antone, M.A. and Mr. Paul O'Boy, B.A., head the administration department at Feehan. Principal Sister Therese, a member of the Mass. Association of Secondary School Principals finds time to give her all for Feehan. Assistant principal, Mr. Paul O'Boy, Feehan's four-job man, does vice-principal duties, teaches law, heads the athletic department, and coaches the football team. Sister Regina Coughlin is chairman of the Guidance department and is always there when help is needed by any student on any problem.

Involved in her efforts to keep Feehan alive and well and living in Attleboro, Sister Therese looks up from her work to give a warm greeting.

Triple threat—vice-principal, athletic director and coach, law teacher—formidable Mr. O'Boy takes a breather from his rugged schedule.

Always willing to advise undecided upperclassmen, Sister Regina Coughlin, M. Ed., smiles with satisfaction while Christine Aussant receives her letter of college acceptance.

Having exhorted graduates to continue to uphold Christian values, Most Reverend Daniel A. Cronin, D.D.S.T.D. is escorted from the graduation exercises by Sister Therese and Father O'Neill.

During commencement exercises Superintendent of Schools, Father Patrick O'Neill addresses graduates.

Celebrating a vocation mass for senior boys are Most Reverend Bishop Daniel Cronin and concelebrants Reverend Ronald Tosti and Brian Harrington.

Faculty teams deepen our bond

Expanding the feeling that Feehan was truly special, this creative faculty went beyond academics. Just as a basketball team works together, these teachers were a team. Team teaching, brother-sister teams, alumni teacher teams—all responded to students' needs. Faculty and students shared such experiences as "Greaser Day," the opening of departmental meetings to students, faculty-student panel and joint curriculum committee. Giving all they have, the faculty team fulfilled the dual role of educator and friend.

Grooving yet another bookcase, Mr. Eugene Touzin shows his practical skill with the router.

Feehan salutes service staff

Behind the scenes clerical, cafeteria, and maintenance work is executed daily by devoted personnel. Swept into the Feehan hustle-bustle, office workers exemplify efficiency. Miss Miriam Condon keeps all financial records straight and Sister M. Anastasia keeps attendance roster up to the minute.

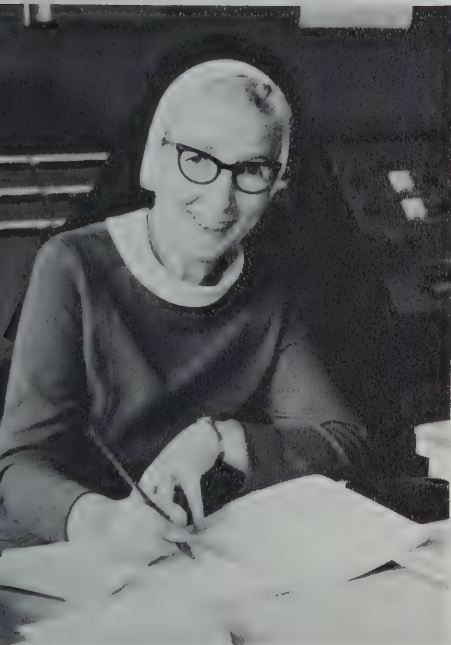

Braving hungry hordes of students, cafeteria workers meet them daily with a smile. Janitors toil from two o'clock on, often unnoticed but surely appreciated. These dedicated people are Feehanites in the best sense of the word.

Updating attendance records, Sister M. Anastasia listens to another "tardy story."

Typing official letters and documents daily keeps Mrs. McAlice's fingers on the keys.

Taking a quick lunch break are Mrs. Lachance, Mrs. Trepanier, and Mrs. Leroux.

Tuition and bills keep Miss Miriam Condon at her adding machine and office files.

Freshmen seed is sown, impregnating spirit.

Faced with a new way of life, the class of '76 eyed Feehan with awe.

Enthusiasm planted its seeds as they strongly supported winning Frosh teams. Freshman cultivated a "Feehan First" in the Freshman Seminar on November 15. A Student Council project, its purpose was to acquaint ninth graders with Feehan life. Their spirit grew as they awaited Homecoming Week and the election of class leaders. Between "Predict-a-Score", nickle raffles and "Greaser Day", the Frosh still had energy to create their unique float—"Spirit of '76". Their flower blooms as their challenges and dreams meet reality.

"Spirit of '76" enters Frosh history while Pamela LeBlanc and Pamela Sullivan reign as attendants

Vital Sophomores nourish their roots.

Old-hats in the Feehan beat, sophs "drummed" together their previous solitary ways. Fuller participation unfolded, strung in a kaleidoscope of new varsity members, and greater participation in clubs, exemplified by the avid chess player. For the first time girls' basketball had cheerleaders-enthusiastic tenth graders. Days unravelled seasonal activities. Homecoming collaged a float, football injuries, and helium balloons. Highlighting dances was that special, the Saide Hawkins, with the trial 'no dress code' coupled with a masquerade in which one sophomore girl was a prize-winning sock. Academically good grades paid off as some sophs became provisional members of the National Honor Society. Well-lived todays made yesterday happy; anticipated tomorrows, visions of hope.

Searching for a pot of gold

Juniors bud forth with gusto

Junior power! Junioritis hit more members of this class this year than the Hong Kong flu. Caught in the middle, the juniors tried to push their way up. They started with their new freedom of unsigned studies, elective schedule, and their ring ceremony. They built it up with the homecoming float, kept it going with the Junior-Senior prom. Inseparable from all Feehan projects—the variety show, the annual school musical and various activities, Juniors, knew the target, aimed steady and sure—BEYOND A DREAM.

Juniors Paula Picard and Katherine Weygand exemplify the happy sentiments of Homecoming Week and the excitement of their third float.

Seniors at top blossom with style and scatter

To the graduate, the walk down the aisle seemed endless. Dim lights cast bold shadows on portions of a life completed and focused on a new existence. He walked expectantly to receive his prize for four years of hard work and dedication. In his mind memories flashed of days full of happiness and struggles now worthwhile. His name was called and he approached the stage. It was his night to shine. Suddenly visions of a victory over Attleboro and the first Homecoming game came before him. He placed himself back at the site of the Ten Mile River clean-up brigade, the paper drives and the interschool spirit contests and remembered that Feehan was always "number one".

He returned to the early morning corridor rush. How he ever made it to class was truly a miracle. Laughing, he remembered the detention hours and the varied reasons for which he had earned the punishment. The touching moments of social Feehan, the proms, the mixers and the "just for fun" assemblies were again real and meaningful. He received his diploma and proudly turned to face fellow classmates for the last time. It was over and he was thankful; but also his heart was full of some regret because he could never turn back but must rather look BEYOND A DREAM.

Clusters of dandelion starlets flutter at random enraptured by
whimsical breezes,
longing to—
peer at experiences,
dabble in a newness,
express passions of all natures,
share ourselves eagerly
maybe for the first time.
As free white dandelion spirits
now
we can discover “today”,
with a flexibility
unknown to us
among our countless yellow fellows.
Dimensions
reflected in yester-dreams “sparkle,” possessing drama
to emphasize whole souls,
with the ability to:
share
views and understanding,
listen
and be undemanding,
revitalizing daily
those victories
and defeats.
But most importantly,
creativity
is stimulated,
anxious to learn,
to love,
to live,
flying, uniquely,
hand in hand,
